FRONT BACK ON TRACK!

WHEN THE NATIONAL FRONT fielded 14 candidates in the General Election on April 9th it was the first time the Party had put its policies to the public on a national platform for nearly ten years.

During the early 1980s efforts to establish the National Front as a serious political party were derailed by a combination of inept, juvenile leadership and an orchestrated campaign of opposition by the Labour Party and the media. Despite efforts to keep ourselves in the public's mind by contesting the odd by-election, the NF was clinically removed from the political arena and put 'beyond the pale' by the establishment.

This led to a period of stagnation within the National Front. No real new members were joining and the only people who seemed interested in the Party were oddballs that believed the media's campaign of denigration. In 1988 Ian Anderson was elected Chairman of the Party and immediately launched a five year plan to get the NF back on the right track so that one day it would be able to compete, once again, in the political arena as an accepted British political party.

The oddballs were expelled from the Party and others, who didn't approve of the new line, left to find a more suitable home. Gradually the National Front started to claw its way back. Our publications smartened their image as well as making their content more relevant to the British political scene. Using The FLAG, Vanguard, Roots of the British and Caring for Britain, the NF's superb election manifesto, all bastions of the establishment were bombarded in the hope that gradually it would filter through that the National Front wished to be considered as a political party once again with its policies discussed in a rational manner.

Gradually doors that had been previously closed to us began to open. Schools, colleges, and libraries started to take our literature. Teachers, lecturers and librarians contacted our head office to query points on our policies - something unheard of since the heady days of the late Seventies.

Fourteen candidates in the General Election, although just a token effort, was accepted by the Establishment as an indication that the change in the National

The benefits of membership of this exclusive club are there to be FAIRBAIRN: Expressed a distaste for coloured immigration.

THERE WAS a time, and not so long ago, when the Tories, cynical as ever and desperate for votes, stole the National Front's trousers by hijacking both the NF slogan 'Put Britain First' and posing as the defenders of Britain against the tidal wave of immigration.

Having succeeded in cheating the British people, apparently without suffering any adverse reaction, the Tories are now vying with Labour as the party fielding the largest number of immigrant candidates. They have shamelessly dropped the trousers they stole from us which is why a thrill of horror ran through the party when the Scottish maverick, Sir Nicholas

Fairbairn, expressed a distaste for coloured immigration that earned him the instant condemnation of the Labour Party and, incredibly, the trouserless Lefty loons who are pleased to describe themselves as the Scottish Nationalist Party.

Both aggregations of slimy ratbags declared that Fairbairn's outburst would destroy the Tories in Scotland. As we now know, they actually gained two seats.

However, it was the reaction of Fairbairn's Tory chums that was most revealing. Being positively awash with alien candidates, they could only deplore his outburst and assure everyone that they were not a bit like him.

A bit of luck for Sir Nicholas, one might think, as was the decision of Willie Whitelaw to express his displeasure in a marked manner by cancelling his proposed trip to support Fairbairn in Perth.

In response, Sir Nicholas accused wobbly Willie of not having read the Tory manifesto. Obviously he himself had not studied Whitelaw's record. It was, after all, the treacherous Whitelaw who, in his capacity of Home Secretary, played footsie in his flat with the IRA behind the backs of the Loyalists. Sir Nicholas, on the other hand, is the sworn enemy of the IRA and one wonders why he should have wanted the support of such a person.

Nicholas Fairbairn will certainly not change the Tory Party but at least he might have done his country some small service by exposing them as the phonies they really are.

He was, of course, re-elected and deserved to be. Just think, to be snubbed by Willie Whitelaw and denounced by the Tories, Labour, Liberal Democrats AND the Scottish Nationalists all in one day. What finer credentials could any politician have?

had to say.

* In Slough, Tory candidate John Watts said the NF had a right to be heard like any other political party and refused to take part in a debate with other candidates if the NF were excluded. Tory agent Richard Stephenson said "You either have all the candidates or you don't have any. It is not for the organisers of meetings to pick and choose".

* In Torbay, Charter 88 a civil liberties group, after carefully studying the NF manifesto, supported the right of NF candidate Bob Jones to address their meeting.

But of course, once in the political arena, you become fair game for other political parties.

* NF supporters in Birmingham Yardley were told on their doorstep by Conservative canvassers that by voting for Pauline Read they would let Labour in.

* The same line of attack was used by Harry Greenaway the Tory MP defending a 15,000 majority in Ealing North. "A vote for the National Front is the same as a vote for Labour" he told a wavering election rally.

* Even John Major found time to acknowledge the return of the National Front, telling a television audience that proportional representation would "enhanced the political opportunities for the National Front".

National Front candidates also put immigration firmly back on the political agenda. Speeches by Douglas Hurd and Kenneth Baker returned to the old, bogus Tory hard-line on coloured immigration, and in every constituency with a National Front candidate immigration was the front page topic of discussion in the local paper.

In the constituencies where NF candidates stood our votes were very small. No one is trying to say otherwise. But because we were allowed greater access to the public and were treated as a political party by our opponents the spin off for us in the form of membership inquiries has been that much greater.

If the General Election was treated as a race, then it was won by the Tories with Labour a close second and the Liberal Democrats a distant third. The National Front trailed in with the also rans. But at least we competed, and we did it to the best of our ability with our limited resources. The experience has done us good and we will do better next time.

During the Eighties we either failed to get to the starting line or once there had been told that our credentials were not suitable to participate.

This time the National Front got to the start and was allowed to race. April 1992 saw the National Front, at last, back on the right track!

BLACKBURN BOTTOM OF THE CLASS!

by Stephen Ebbs

OUT OF the whole of Lancashire the Blackburn Education District came bottom in Mathematics, English and Science tests, according to National Curriculum assessments of six and seven year-olds in the Second Year. The district was also below the national average.

Mr. Andrew Collier, the County's Chief Education Officer said

"Who is to say the performance of Blackburn is necessarily low? It compares with Bradford and their performance could actually be rather good!"

The Education Officer chose to compare results with Bradford because that area, like Blackburn, has schools predominantly made up of pupils from the town's Asian community.

He continued... "Some children started school life with little or no English and this is what has caused the poor results".

In The FLAG No.56 some Lancashire County Council statistics were revealed and briefly these were:

* 92% of Asian pupils starting nursery schools and classes do not know enough English to communicate their basic needs.

* Two-thirds of Asian pupils starting primary school speak little or no English.

THE SLUR OF BEING QUEER

HOMOSEXUALITY IS NOT NORMAL!! - was the message that came out loud and clear from the Royal Courts of Justice after a libel jury had awarded pop star Jason Donovan with £200,000 damages after a magazine claimed he was queer.

"They called Jason a pervert and now they've had to pay" exclaimed an excited supporter outside the courts, and that was the general opinion of all those who attended the three day trial from the barristers to the pressmen.

FORCE-FED

The result of this case is excellent news for the British people. After 20 years of being force-fed pro-homosexual propaganda, from the daily newspaper to the classroom, the British people have not been deviated from the institution of family life and the rightful belief that homosexuality is unnatural, very queer and for a normal person to be tarred with that brush is an horrendous slur.

Such a ruling helps restore one's faith in the British judicial system.

JASON: Glad not to be 'Gay'

GROVELLER LEE BITES THE DUST!

TO SEE an MP, who has made his meal-ticket out of grovelling to the ethnic minorities in his constituency, bite the dust, is a most satisfying sight.

The revolting John Lee of Pendle was one such MP. His continual fawning over the Pakistani community raised the shackles of the most docile member of the local British community. Even the last minute introduction of immigration control hardliner, Lord Waddington, failed to rejuvenate his flagging campaign.

Maybe it was something to do with the fact that Waddington's only action in the constituency was to visit a mosque.

Mohammad Noshervan welcomes Lord Waddington and John Lee.

ASIANS: Holding back the British schoolchildren

* 20% of Asian primary schoolchildren are absent from the classroom each day.

Headmasters of predominantly White schools were quick to point out that their results were far better than the district's, indicating that it was the multi-racial schools where the bad results were achieved.

John Duckworth, headmaster of St Silas Church of England School commented,

"Not only are there large numbers of Asian children who cannot read when they come to school, the majority have very limited command of English, perhaps just a few words".

The Labour Party's Education Secretary, Jack Straw believes in doctoring the results in areas with a high immigrant population by taking into account ethnic backgrounds when testing.

The National Front believes the Pakistani and Indian children in Blackburn should be returned to their own countries. Until that happens schools should be segregated as Asian pupils who are unable to speak English are holding back British schoolchildren

LET'S HAVE BRITISH FOOD!

THERE WAS almost a riot at Full Sutton Prison, near York, over the food dished-up to the inmates.

It was not the quality of the food that led to the demonstration but the insistence of the prison authorities to dish-up exotic meals from India and the Caribbean.

"We just want British meals" said a spokesman for the prisoners. "If we have another curry served up to us there could be serious consequences".

SAVE MONEY EAT BRITISH

BRITAIN CURRENTLY imports £5.4 billion more food than we export. If that could be cut it would have a major effect on the total trade deficit of £5.8 billion.

Fighting the corner for British food is a Government-sponsored promotional organisation Food From Britain who have published figures that show our food and drink sector accounts for the largest part of our trade deficit.

The report is critical that Britain imports three times as much meat as we export, with £280 million worth of meat coming from Ireland when we sell less than £60 million over there. We import twice as much dairy produce as we export, and buy £900 million worth of fish from abroad despite our own fleet being under-used and our waters being plundered by foreign vessels.

The report concludes that it is better for Britain, and cheaper for the British people, to buy British food and drink.

That is something that the National Front has been saying for the last 25 years. The unnecessary movement of food from one country to another only benefits the banks who take their pound of flesh from the currency exchange.

Next time you do your Friday evening shopping make sure you buy British goods and give a slap in the eye to the money-grabbing banks.

SHARPE: It's the way he tells them!

TOP COP UNDER FIRE

LESLIE SHARPE, the Chief Constable of Strathclyde, was in hot water after telling a 'racist' joke during an after dinner speech at a cricket club.

He told how a robot umpire dazzled players because it was pure white. Mr Sharpe, a cricket umpire himself, was alleged to have said, "It was suggested that they paint it black. But they said they had, and once they did, it was no good because it started smoking pot, mugging old ladies and robbing shops".

The joke was too close to the truth and enraged the Commission for Racial Equality who have demanded the Chief Constable's resignation.

ALTHOUGH ONLY into its second month the race for the Branch Efficiency Cup is already hotting up. West London is out in front and will take some catching although Leeds and Beckenham are still well in contention. Beckenham is poised to catch up quickly with the new re-organisation of London branches and Leeds Branch is going from strength to strength.

Several smaller branches are doing quite well, these include Derby, Slough and Great Yarmouth. A good outside bet would be Birmingham, who although 13th because only one Report Form has been received to date, they will gain 200 points for their excellent General Election effort.

East London is also getting ready for a quick sprint up the table with its re-organisation and projected programme of activities.

Graham Wroe, a green victim of a National Front ban.

BLACK MAYOR BANS GREENS!

SHEFFIELD'S NEW Asian mayor Qurban Hussain was so frightened that the General Election would allow National Front candidates to address public meetings in his city that he issued a dictate informing public meeting organisers they were only allowed to invite candidates from the three main parties.

It was too late to reverse this order when nominations closed and the city was without an NF contestant. The only victim of the ban was Green Party candidate Graham Wroe who was left out in the cold.

FINANCE

MANY THANKS

THE National Front would like to say a big thank you to all those who supported our emergency General Election Appeal. Our special thanks also to Mr Williams from Suffolk and Mr Howard from Leeds for their generous and consistent financial support.

Manifesto Greeted With Acclaim!

THE NATIONAL Front launched its manifesto well in advance of the General Election so that the British people could have a good long look at our policies before deciding whether to vote for us. This decision clearly paid off as not only have sales been excellent but we have also been able to get the publication into a large number of libraries.

The manifesto has been greeted with acclaim even by some of our opponents who have been greatly surprised by its breadth of policies and also by its reflection of our new image as a caring and responsible Party.

A number of special interest and pressure groups have also taken great interest in the manifesto. This includes civil liberty groups, anti-European Community groups, anti-abortion organisations and a variety of others.

As well as being an ideal manifesto for the election "CARING FOR BRITAIN" will be the most comprehensive exposition of National Front policies for some time to come. We believe it is a vital weapon in our armoury of arguments and literature designed to support the ideas of racial nationalism and to build the National Front.

Copies of the manifesto are still available from Freedom Books, BCM Newpat, London WC1N 3XX and is priced at £2.95 each including postage.

ELECTION REPORT

WE CAN BUILD ON THIS SUCCESS!

FOR THE FIRST time in nearly ten years the National Front contested a General Election and the results were better than our most optimistic expectations. Over the past three years we have contested a number of parliamentary by-elections gaining total votes of between 100 and 300. In this election we fought 14 seats, achieved five votes in excess of the 300-vote hurdle and three of these were well in excess of 600 votes.

The closeness of the contest between Labour and the Conservatives meant that all the smaller parties were squeezed. The Liberal Democrat vote was down nearly a quarter, the Green Party saw their vote relative to that achieved in the European Elections collapse and the extreme Left-wing parties were annihilated. In contrast the National Front saw its average vote continue to increase.

Of greater importance however to the National Front is the level of recruitment of new members. In this respect the General Election has also been a great success resulting in a positive influx of new members. To our surprise and delight many of these have been ladies who are now making up an increasing proportion of National Front membership.

The other great advance by the Party has been in the competence and confidence of our officials. Very few of them had previously contested an election and yet most of them came through the ordeal with flying colours and will now make much better organisers as a result.

It seems fairly clear that with a slender majority of just twenty-one seats, John Major does not have a sufficient lead to get through a five-year term as by-election reversals are likely to whittle down his majority fairly quickly.

It would seem probable that we can expect another General Election in between one and three years. This would be ideal for the National Front. We will be able to field more candidates at this time and can be very confident of building on the success of the 1992 General Election.

ANALYSIS

THE Directorate of the National Front met to discuss contingency plans at their April meeting in the event of another General Election being called within the next 12 months. One option was that our best five seats would all be fought again with seats adjacent to the constituencies being considered.

More Evidence We've Turned the Corner

IN THE April 1990 issue of The FLAG we published an analysis of previous National Front votes including the then recent Mid-Staffordshire by-election. We looked at the vote in the 1979 and 1983 General Elections and the votes in by-elections since then. At that time we felt we had halted the decline in National Front votes which had taken place between 1979 and 1985. We finished off the article by saying that:-

"The level of popular support is still very low and we have an awfully long way to go. But this does provide us with some evidence that we may, at last, have turned the corner and be on our way back."

The recent General Election which is obviously a better standard by which to gauge our level of support because it involves a far greater number of contests has confirmed this trend. From the low point of 1987/88 there has been a steady revival of our fortunes and the recent election showed that the trend had continued and that we are now approaching the level of support we achieved in 1983.

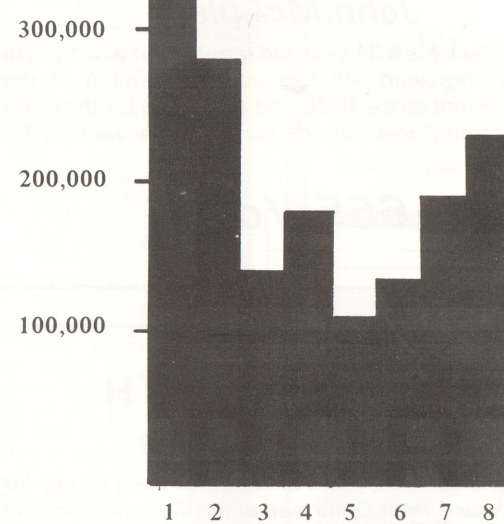

The accompanying chart shows the number of votes we would receive in Britain if the results we actually achieved were repeated across all constituencies. This is perhaps the only meaningful way of comparing votes at varying different types of election including by-elections, General Elections and the European Elections.

With a united Party and a vastly better political image, we can now be quite confident that our level of support will continue to grow. Of particular pleasure was the level of support we gained in areas like Torbay, West Herts, Derby and Bristol; these are not traditional areas of support for the NF and their good results again testify to our ability to attract support from all sections of our nation and not to be restricted to just one area or one type of support.

This last point is particularly important, because as we grow, we will need to obtain good results from an ever-widening range of constituencies. The clear

Mum's the Word

NEXT TIME a Tory tells you that he agrees with our policy on immigration, ask him about Conservative Central Office's directive to all their candidates in the General Election. It bluntly stated that on no account should any candidate mention immigration either orally or in writing.

After all, they don't want to upset their Asian supporters do they? So much for political principle.

After the Count

THE BLACK Country results were undoubtedly the jewel in the NF crown so it was fitting that they should organise a social for after the count. With a comedian (no not Neil Kinnock) and a plentiful supply of alcohol, the candidates, agents, organisers and activists held a very pleasant and well deserved social evening.

Asian Praise

IN SLOUGH a number of Asian Conservatives approached NF candidate Andy Carmichael and said how impressed they were with the content, and quality of presentation of the National Front manifesto. However they did acknowledge that there was one policy which they didn't agree with - NOW I WONDER WHICH THAT ONE WAS!!

Cheltenham!

WHEN THE Cheltenham result came through to those attending the Bristol count there were cheers from both the National Front members present and the Liberal Democrats. When the Liberals saw the NF cheering they suddenly went very quiet.

Taylor, the Black Conservative candidate who was imposed on the constituency by Conservative Central Office immediately blamed the National Front for his failure claiming "There were National Front leaflets going around the town before the election". By these and other actions he demonstrated that there is yet another British attribute that he doesn't possess - being able to accept defeat in a dignified manner.

Balance

IN BIRMINGHAM Yardley the Labour candidate beat the Tory candidate by 162 votes. Pauline Read for the National Front gained 192 votes. The local Tory Association immediately blamed the NF for their defeat ignoring the fact that the National Front takes votes off both the Labour and Tory Parties.

Fame at Last

BOB JONES the NF's excellent candidate in Torbay has been shot into stardom after BBC's Election Night Special. With Torbay expected to be one of the first constituencies to declare the Beeb dispatched Kate Adey to South Devon to cover the count.

Almost by design everytime the cameras were there so was Bob. First looking pensive, then happy, then querying the result with the Returning Officer.

So from relative obscurity of his semi in Brum, Bob spent one night in 20 million living rooms being a great ambassador for the National Front.

Well Done John

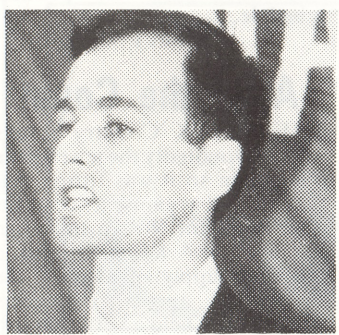

JOHN McAULEY has been working away promoting the National Front on his home patch of Hemel Hempstead since the General Election of 1979.

He's had a very difficult task and has had to put up with a campaign of ridicule by the Labour Party denouncing his efforts as useless. In one local council election he polled just 18 votes but still stood up proudly, despite the hoots of derision from his opponents, as the result was announced and in his speech said he would continue to build the NF in his area - and that is exactly what he has done.

There were no hoots of derision when the General Election result for Hertfordshire West was announced and John polled 665 votes failing to overall the media-puffed Green candidate by just nine votes.

| THE FAMILY | Ignore the problems of our families. Don't help with the children. Spend money on Lesbian/Homosexual couples | Increase child allowances, provide free school meals for all, allow tax relief on crèche facilities. Ensure decent housing. |

You may wonder how we could possibly pay for some of these policies. We would raise the money by taxing foreign imports, by cutting back on foreign aid and by refusing to pay another single penny to prop up the bureaucrats in Brussels. By building up our economy and reducing unemployment we would be able to save large sums of money which would provide funds for our hospitals and schools.

OTHER NATIONAL FRONT POLICIES

ANDY CARMICHAEL - CARING FOR SLOUGH

ANDY CARMICHAEL is a 29 year old self employed motor trader. Andy used to be a member of the Conservative Party and has stood for them in previous Council elections, but he has become disillusioned with their failures and anti-British attitude. Andy believes that Slough is being badly hit both by the slump and by rising levels of crime. He asks for your vote so that we can really start to tackle these problems.

Very well done to all those branch activists who toiled late into the night to make sure the address went out on time!

THE NATIONAL FRONT - A VOTE FOR YOUR CHILDRENS' FUTURE

You can waste your vote on one of the old parties, who despite all their promises will just offer you more of the same: a declining economy, more job losses, a deteriorating Health Service, increasing crime levels and a polluted environment. Alternatively you can give your support to a young party, a party dedicated to making Britain a better place, not just for you, but also for your children and their children. We don't offer a few pennies off your tax bill, a slight adjustment to your mortgage or rent, a smaller increase in the cost of a packet of cigarettes: What we offer is a new vision of Britain - a Britain where the old are cared for properly and are safe to walk in our streets, a Britain where the goods in our shops are made in Britain by British people thus providing jobs for our youngsters, a Britain which is clean and pleasant where our children are taught properly what they need to know to earn a living and about OUR history and culture.

We want a Britain where the family comes first - a Britain in which we can be proud to have our children grow up. If this is what you want, then don't waste your votes on the old parties, support Britain's growing Nationalist party - THE NATIONAL FRONT!

Platform row over NF choice

Liberal Democrats organising the Charter 88 meeting to discuss the ERM refused their invitation. Robert Jones, National Front candidate for Torbay, said: "I am absolutely appalled that the National Front candidate was invited in the first place and it is ironic that he has been invited to a meeting to discuss democratic reform. 'I am disgusted with the organisers and won't be attending'."

Robert Jones National Front candidate

Robert Jones, 34, single, has been invited to a meeting to discuss democratic reform. He said: "I am absolutely appalled that the National Front candidate was invited in the first place and it is ironic that he has been invited to a meeting to discuss democratic reform. 'I am disgusted with the organisers and won't be attending'."

IT'S OUR COUNTRY, LET'S WIN IT BACK

ROBERT JONES SAYS...

THIS IS YOUR COUNTRY, fight for it! You must turn aside from the insane and treacherous antics of the Conservative, Labour and Liberal parties, who between them offer you: Higher Taxation, Increased Foreign Aid, Unrestricted Immigration from the Third World with further millions to come from Hong Kong, and Full Commitment to the EEC and so the loss of our National Identity. On Polling Day if you give me your vote I will do my utmost to give you and your children a British and better future.

'We are losing our national identity'

Robert Paul Jones, age 34, single. Curriculum vitae

Other job: Electrician. Education: Oldown Secondary School; Garretts Green Technical College; City & Guilds (A&B) Electrical Installation.

Political Background: Member of National Front from 1976-92; candidate 1983 Yarmley constituency; local election candidate in Birmingham from 1980.

Political file

The three key local issues voters have raised during canvassing are: Law and order, lack of tourist trade, unemployment. Other local issues I feel important are: The apathy that has seen the destruction of our industrial and manufacturing capacity, and the near total collapse of the fishing and building industries. The three key national issues voters raise, apart from the above, are: The health service, the economy, the environment. Other national issues I consider important are: Excluding beneficial trading agreements, withdraw Britain from the EEC and elect a government that can govern in the people's best interest. How involved should an MP be in local issues? Should live in the area and get involved in the local community. An example in my area would be: To get involved with the local youth club and churches.

Personal file

My favourite... Politician is: Enoch Powell. TV Show/Book: Coronation St (1992) Enoch Powell. Hobby/pastime: golf, fishing. Food: fish and chips. Music: David Bowie/Marc Bolan/T Rex. Pet: Tropical fish. Pet hate... People who say Northern Ireland is not British.

Why people should vote for me: This is your country, fight for it! You must turn aside from the insane and treacherous antics of the Conservative, Labour and Liberal parties, who between them offer you higher taxation, increased foreign aid, unrestricted immigration from the Third World with further millions to come from Hong Kong, and full commitments to the EEC and so the loss of our national identity.

SUICIDE PACT

My Verdict on the General Election
by Ted Budden

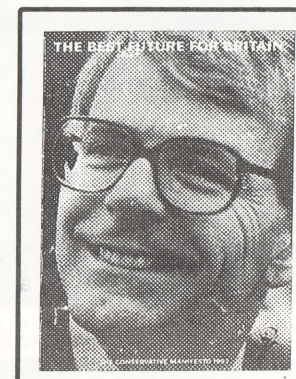

IT WAS MIDNIGHT, April 9th. The whole world held its breath as the verdict of the British people filtered through - a decision that would shape the universe for a thousand years!

Well, actually, I rather doubt if the whole world knew we were having an election or cared. Certainly the whole world knows that Britain will continue to go down the drain and that it was merely a matter of who would do the flushing.

Would it be the Iron Wimp? Or Dim Boyo? Or would Pouting Paddy have a hand on the chain? There we were all sitting on the edge of our seats in front of the telly as the swingometers oscillated wildly and the computer mock-ups of that mock debating chamber the House of Commons changed shape with every passing minute.

The Opinion Poll moguls chewed their lips; the political pundits waffled frenziedly. What would be the outcome? Would it be Lab or Con or Lib/Lab or Lib/Con or, surely not (and here a thrill of horror ran through the studio), a case of the Tories clinging to power with the support of the Ulster Unionists? This last prospect of the few remaining true Britons having a say in the future of their country was so outrageous that ITN's great capture from the BBC; that puffed-up, pompous, drivelling spotty-tied little twit, Robin Day (oh, I do beg his pardon, SIR Robin Day) was moved to splutter "but surely the Conservatives won't touch the Ulster Unionists with a barge pole?" Such is loyalty media style.

THEIR MANIFESTOS: A Blueprint for Suicide

So there we all were on the edge of our seats - well most of us. Truth to tell, I fell off mine just after midnight and woke in the morning to find that after all the electioneering since the last election; the phoney election campaign of the last six months, and the real phoney election campaign of the last three weeks, nothing had changed.

The Iron Wimp is still in residence at No.10. The unemployed are still unemployed. The little of British industry that's left is still owned by the Japs and the Yanks. The currency is still worth the paper it is printed on, just about. The immigrant infestation continues unabated. The present is dismal, the future almost certainly worse.

A feeble elective dictatorship still rules the roost and, apparently, the British are now so timid that they prefer to cling to the certainties of a government that will certainly perform as badly in the future as it has in the past.

Labour's manifesto in the 1987 election was the dubbed 'The Longest Suicide Note in History'. The vote of the great British electorate in 1992 may be seen in history, if history bothers to record the fact, as the most populous suicide pact ever!

THE WEDDING OF THE CAMPAIGN

TAKING TIME off from his hectic campaign in Dudley East was National Front candidate George Cartwright who on Saturday 28th March married his fiancé Lorraine, the Secretary of Dudley and Wolverhampton Branch of the National Front.

NEW ADDRESS FOR THE NATIONAL FRONT

AFTER SIX very happy years taking in the sea air on the Sussex coast at Worthing, the National Front Head Office has now returned to the smoke.

From the beginning of April, the National Front can be contacted by writing to The National Front, P.O.Box 2269, London E6 3RF, or by telephoning 081-471 6872.

The Worthing address will still function for another 12 months as most NF recruitment leaflets still bear its mark. The National Front would like to thank all Worthing members who enabled the office to run so smoothly there with a special mention to Darren Copeland who has been in charge during the change over.

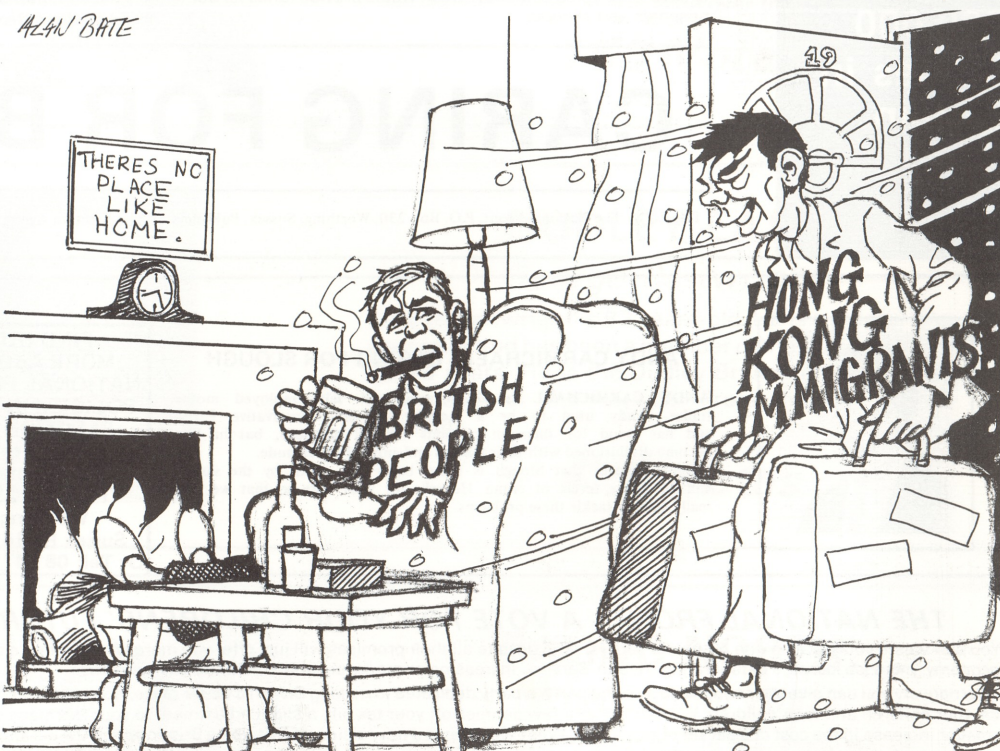

NEW MEMBER? - HOW YOU CAN HELP!

If you are one of those new members who have joined the National Front in the past month - welcome to our Party.

The paper you are reading now The FLAG is our monthly newspaper which keeps you up to date with all the latest news. It would help us greatly if you would take out a subscription to ensure you receive a copy each month. Details are on the back page.

If you have a local NF branch then please support their meetings and activities, but if you are 'out in the sticks' you can still help by joining our Friends of the Front scheme by donating £5.00 a month, every month, to help meet the day to day running expenses of the National Front. Full details of this scheme can be obtained from The Secretary, P.O.Box 2269, London E6 3RF.

THE WORLD OF ALAN BATE

"The old man settled back in his chair. He was at peace again. The Tories had won the election so Britain was safe from the Third World hordes who would have entered Britain under Labour. Suddenly there was a noise outside and the door flew open . . .

Silver Linings

THE APPARENT willingness of the great British electorate to condemn this nation to death is always dispiriting. Nevertheless, every election does provide some compensation in the pleasure one can take in the disappointment of some of the rathbags who lose their parliamentary dog licenses.

There was bad news too, of course. Despite the Tories putting up a Moslem against him, the Imam of Sparkbrook, the odious Roy Hattersley, actually increased his share of the vote. No doubt as an expression of his gratitude, the Imam has since called for more immigration and has described the Libocrat victory in Cheltenham as "dubious"; a description he would probably apply to every constituency where a Black candidate failed to get elected.

The good news was the trouncing of Libocrat rathbag David Bellotti at Eastbourne, a seat he won at a by-election after Ian Gow was murdered by the IRA. Ian Gow was a doughty defender of the Loyalist cause in Ulster but Bellotti was most adept at sniping at the Loyalists in the style of his beloved leader Paddy Ashdown. Good riddance to a particularly obnoxious piece of bad rubbish.

The major piece of good news was, of course, the defeat of Black Jack Taylor at Cheltenham. The Tories paid the price there for imposing a Black candidate on what they presumed was a tame and compliant constituency. It is interesting to note the subsequent reaction of local Tories to that near inevitable defeat.

One can almost hear the tramping of jackboots and the hoarse cries of "Ye haf ways of making you vote right" as they round on those who toed the party line with insufficient enthusiasm. A Tory ward secretary, a certain Nick Leach, is reported as saying that he will be pressing for the expulsion of several of his colleagues who supported the Black true blue but expressed derogatory views about him. "There are outright racists holding Tory membership cards and I want them out of the party", wailed this Leach person.

Other Cheltenham Tories blame the defeat on the lower classes. A Mr. A.W. Mortimer Moore, writing in the Daily

Telegraph claimed that the decisive anti-Taylor vote came from "... the town's poorest areas, Waddon and Hester's Way, which are inhabited by the ex-agricultural working class, who are not dissimilar in outlook to Essex Man."

Yes folks, believe it or not, persons like Nick Leach and A.W. Mortimer Moore actually do still exist in places like Cheltenham.

I know it's a rotten thing to say about anyone but I really do believe that they deserve a Libocrat MP.

SCARGILL: Cut down to size.

Do Go Down The Mine Arthur

ALTHOUGH ONE of my most pleasant memories of the election was the sight of a woebegone Neil Kinnock after his dreams of empire had vanished before his very eyes, I must admit to a sneaking sympathy for him in his post-election denunciation of the Tory press.

Aneurin Bevan once described our wonderful free press as "the most prostituted in the world". No reasonable person could disagree with that or with the fact that the Tories, who love off its immoral earnings, are low-grade pimps.

Certainly the campaign conducted by the press on behalf of the Tories was a scandal being a cynical barrage of lies, half-truths and crude misrepresentation.

The leader in this field was the Daily Mail which, in any decent society, would be banned under the Obscene Publications Act.

Why so desperate was the Mail to make our flesh creep by dredging up bogeymen to haunt our dreams that they resuscitated that awful enemy of our great British freedoms, poor old Arthur Scargill, a pre-eminent busted flush if ever there was one.

The Mail solemnly assured us on election eve that if Neil Kinnock got his feet under the table at No.10, that fiend in human shape Arthur Scargill would be pulling the strings of power. Some flight of fancy. Some joke.

For, alas, the Tories' former public enemy No.1 now doesn't rank among the top hundred fiends in human shape. Since he was cut down to size by that rusty old battleaxe Margaret Thatcher, poor Arthur has seen the membership of his once powerful union decline to near vanishing point.

So weak is his union now that Arthur, in desperation, has proposed a merger with the Transport and General Workers Union on condition that he is given a top job.

Alas, poor Arthur. Bill Morris, the haughty West Indian General Secretary of the TGWU, has rebuffed the former lion of the Left, presumably on the grounds that he lacks the necessary qualifications.

So what is poor Arthur to do? I suggest that he desists from tabling composite resolutions at all those interminable conferences and serves a spell with his few remaining members down the pit. He will then be black enough for the very highest position in the TGWU!

Junk Dealers Jamboree

IF THIS General Election is to be remembered for anything it will be for the manner in which the party leaders were peddled like pre-packaged products - not soap powder, as some would have it, but junk food that results in queasiness followed by outright nausea.

At the last election, Labour was reputed to have conducted the most professional campaign yet lost the election by a wide margin. One recalls that idyllic scene where Neil Kinnock and Glenys walked hand in hand along a cliff-top. Throughout the nation viewers were riveted to the telly urging them to jump over the edge - but they didn't. It was disappointments like that that doomed Labour to defeat yet they didn't take the lesson to heart.

In this election, our dim Neil was still projected as being the leader-in-waiting. True the campaign manipulators tried to sustain the illusion by inducing him to keep his drivelling trap shut most of the time but then blew the whole thing by staging the fatuous Love Our Neil extravaganza at Sheffield - a sort of sub-Nurembergian rally with full-time practising pervers replacing the stormtroopers. It was a blatant case of gilding the peanut that served only to emphasise what a very small leader-in-waiting he really was and to remind us all of the ghastly evening when Kinnock and his old red tomato Glenys writhed incongruously to the Mandela jive at the Wembley Festival of Ethno-Masochism. Clearly the Labour ad-men had never heard of aversion therapy.

Yet if the Labour ad-men blew a fuse then the Tory ad-men forgot to install one for the Tory campaign was as incompetent as the Tory record in office. This may have been to some extent to them persisting with Madam Thatcher's beloved Saatchi and Saatchi as their ad-men.

Saatchi and Saatchi have recently had an exceedingly close encounter of the insolvency kind and perhaps their campaign was not so much as the blind leading the blind as the financially near-bankrupt leading the intellectually totally bankrupt.

Their projection of John Major

(nee Ball) as a simple man of the people was hilarious farce. His ludicrous posturing as a fearless street orator, quavering from a soap box to a small but select audience of the faithful, made one wince with embarrassment as one does when an incompetent amateur ham actor fluffs his lines.

His journey back to his Brixton roots - now uncomfortably similar to the Black plagiarist Alex Haley's "Roots" - was a real hoot. It was all rather like a home movie only without the expertise.

We saw a man of the people buying a pair of kippers just like any other man of the people. We heard him claim, wholly unconvincingly, that in his youth he often harangued the many headed from a soapbox and was sometimes the victim of what he prissily called 'badinage'. One can only conjecture on the nature of this coarse Brixton badinage but perhaps it was the reason why he changed his name from Ball!

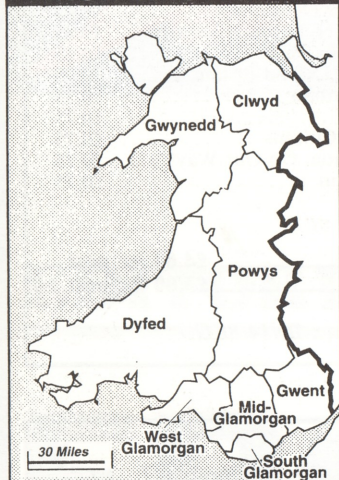

The Tory campaign won the day because it had more laughs than Labour's, albeit unintentional. But in truth it was all such a waste of money. All that was needed was a simple question: "Which one do you detest most, Major or Kinnock?". As the election result clearly demonstrated, Major has made too feeble an impression to be hated - yet.

The changes are not merely cosmetic either with many of the largest urban centres regaining full control of their own affairs.

The Hypocrisy of the Banks

I SINCERELY hope that the hard pressed homebuyers and businessmen and women of Britain haven't failed to recognise the hypocrisy of our banking institutions whereby every year millions of pounds of Third World loans are written off whilst hard-working Britons are forced onto the street and lose their businesses for what amounts to small change.

Would They Volunteer?

With reference to an article entitled "Would You Fight For Your Country?" which appeared in The FLAG Issue No.61, of January 1992. I have often wondered to myself what the outcome would be if (God forbid!) a Third World War was directed against our green and pleasant land as it was in the dark days of 1939.

As a loyal English patriot I volunteered but what I would like to know is would the Bangladeshis, Pakistanis, Africans, Indians and West Indians in this country and not forgetting the Hong Kong Chinese who will soon be making a bee-line here - be volunteering to defend our democracy or would they be conscripted for military service?

My guess is they would scuttle back to where they come from before the call-up papers came through their letter boxes.

It's just a thought - what do you think?

S. Carvill,

Politicians Take No Notice

I WAS shocked at the amount of money we give-away to Overseas Aid. Surely the £500 million of our money would be better spent on retaining the strength of our armed forces along with that essential force of policing.

OVERSEAS AID: Bottomless pit

A friend (a businessman) has just called in. He too was shocked to read of the extent of the give-away. His comment was "...send your letter off - but politicians take no notice of the public". If that is the case why should we, the public, put back into office these politicians?

Of course the die-hards of each respective party will, like sheep, flock to the polling stations - to vote back into office their favourite in the political race. But favourites are all too often losers with the voter being the biggest loser of all.

Mr. A.E. Sutton,
Birmingham,
West Midlands.

Good News From Derby

I WOULD like to inform you of our successful General Election campaign. We received a favourable response from the many houses we canvassed, and more than 40 new recruits have joined the Party, with many others pledging their future support for the National Front.

It was a response far in excess of our expectations, and justified our decision to contest the Derby North constituency.

We didn't hold any public meetings, because, as stated by the Conservative candidate, Mr. Greg Knight, these meetings only attract the "rent a mob" mentality, and any disturbance would have been laid at our door.

We shall be continuing our door to door campaign during the summer and hopefully will recruit even more people to join the National Front.

We have also received the numerous letters to our Post Office Box from Derby South, who knows, we may have a candidate there next time!

Peter Hart,
National Front Candidate
Derby North.

McAuley the Outsider Upsets the Odds

AS ONE who takes a great interest in the National Front I drew up my prediction as to how the National Front candidates would perform in their constituencies. Being a student of form during the Flat Racing season as well I turned my prediction into odds on which candidate would get the best vote.

The only filly in the field went off favourite and these were the starting prices as the polling booths closed on April 9th:-

|-------|-------------------|
| 7/2 | Pauline Read |
| 4/1 | Ken Reynolds |
| 5/1 | John Lord |
| 11/2 | George Cartwright |
| 8/1 | Eddie Whicker |
| 10/1 | Norman Tomkinson |
| 16/1 | Christopher Hill |
| 20/1 | Andy Carmichael |
| 25/1 | Ian Anderson |
| 25/1 | Peter Hart |
| 33/1 | Robert Tenney |
| 33/1 | John McAuley |
| 50/1 | Terry Blackham |
| 100/1 | Robert Jones |

The final result according to my calculations was:

| | | |
|----|-------------------|------|
| 1. | John McAuley | 33-1 |
| 2. | George Cartwright | 11-2 |
| 3. | Ken Reynolds | 4-1 |

John McAuley had no form whatsoever and the only reason that I made him a 33-1 chance rather than a 100-1 chance, like Bob Jones, was that his name was known in the constituency and that he had fought local council elections there.

Trailing in last was my own Bob Tenney. He, of course, would have nearly won if he had stood again in the Bradford seat he fought in the by-election. Who on earth made the decision to contest the awful Leeds West seat?

Mr. P Cox,
Leeds,
West Yorkshire.

It Couldn't Have Been Done Without Him.

THE SUCCESS of the election effort of the National Front in the West Midlands was mainly due to the financial help given by a local businessman.

I believe, like me, the gentleman concerned likes to keep his help behind the scenes, but does contribute generously because of a total commitment to the policies of the National Front.

I know I am speaking on behalf of a great many members of the NF in and around Birmingham, who have only just become aware of the extent of his help, when saying a heart-felt thank you to this gentleman.

Right to Keep Your Distance.

AS A previous exponent of 'Nationalist Unity' I was shocked to read that the British National Party now believe in a dictatorship.

While I am certain that this is a new change of direction for them it does prove that the National Front's decision to keep their distance from Tyndall & Co. was correct.

The British will never have truck with totalitarianism whether of the Left or Right.

RAMADAN: A British child helps celebrate.

Muslims Ignore Ramadan but British Kids still Suffer

BRITISH CHILDREN in Lancashire's schools are missing valuable lessons to take part in Asian religious ceremonies.

The Muslim equivalent of Christmas, Ramadan, is the latest cause of the disruption following on from days missed at the end of last year for another pagan festival Diwali.

Ramadan is when Muslims remember the month the Koran was sent down from God to the Prophet Mohammed to guide the Muslim people. To mark the occasion the faithful do not eat or have sex for 28 days!

While British schoolkids might be participants in these heathen rituals, teenage Muslims are ignoring Ramadan altogether. Aziz Chaudhry of the Burnley Mosque Association attacked tearaway youngster for ignoring the fast and going to Blackpool on boozy binges.

The Air That We Breathe

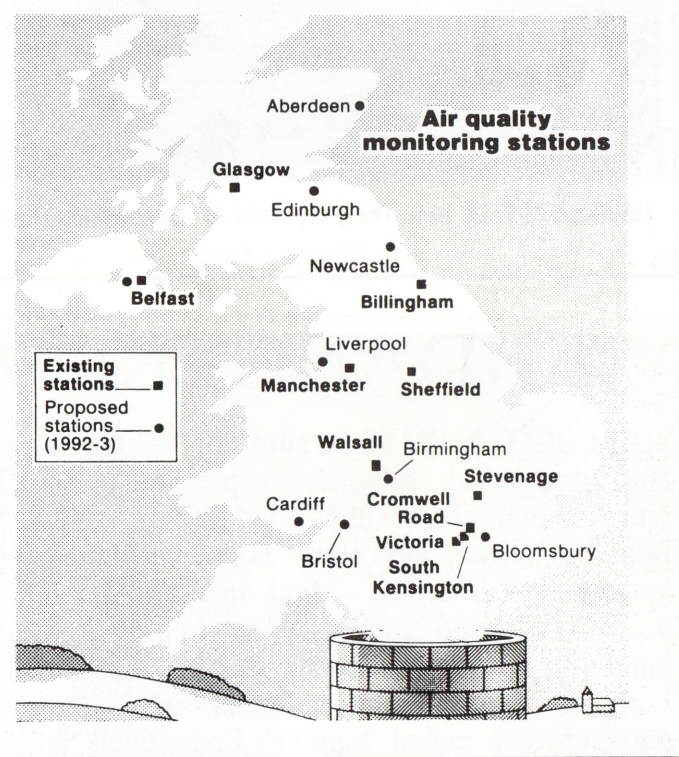

THE AIR we breath in four of Britain's cities is so badly polluted that it breaks European Commission Safety levels.

Average nitrogen dioxide levels in London, Birmingham, Manchester and Cardiff exceed the EC safety limit of forty parts per billion.

There are ten stations in Britain monitoring the quality of the air which all report excessive pollution from vehicle exhausts.

The National Front believes that steps should be taken now to limit the number of vehicles on Britain's roads by encouraging a switch in the transport of freight to the railways.

Unless measures are taken now to stem the rise in exhaust emissions, a deteriorating air quality will have serious effects on the wellbeing of the British people.

THE BOOK BURNERS OF BRENT

WHEN THE Tories won power in Brent from Labour 12 months ago they found evidence that 600,000 books, worth £4.6 million had been removed from the Borough's libraries and pulped.

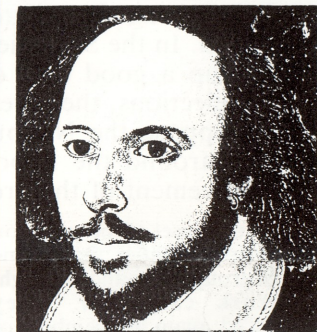

Gone were Dickens, Shakespeare, Cobbett, Henry Williamson, C.S. Lewis, and Enid Blyton. They were replaced by books on Lesbianism, Asian history and the struggle against Apartheid.

There were no Famous Five in the children's section but plenty of titles concerning race and the role of women in history.

Writing in the Library Association Record, Alan Linfield, a Brent Librarian between 1980 and 1985 said that many books were disposed of for political reasons.

"The Left-wing sympathies of Brent council allowed the inverted Nazism of radical librarianship free rein to censor anything that offended its sensibilities" he said.

"Consequently, there was a witch-hunt for any books that could possibly be construed as sexist, racist or colonialist, which were fallen upon with all the fury of a Puritan iconoclast".

SHAKESPEARE: Axed

CLASSIC FAILURE

BRITISH STANDARDS of higher education are being further eroded by a crack-pot American form of study called Modularisation.

In this imported, short-cut method to gaining degrees at British universities the students construct their own courses. So out go the likes of Shakespeare, Milton and Chaucer which tax the brain to interpret the text and in come easier to understand modern works many from American authors.

A National Front Government would return British students to the Classics. To ignore Shakespeare and other greats is a betrayal of the canon of English Literature and would undermine the achievements of students graduating in English.

Squirrel in Britain.

The Dormouse, once widespread throughout the country, has entirely disappeared from northern and eastern counties but now efforts are being made to re-introduce it in its ancient territories.

Also included in the Species Recovery Programme are attempts to re-establish Stinking Hawk's Beard, a plant with a striking yellow flower, the Essex Emerald Moth and the Reddish Buff Moth, all who have fallen victim to the urbanisation of the countryside.

Of course the Red Squirrel is not the only native of these shores that is finding its territory eroded by the importation of an alien species. Let's just hope that during the next century there isn't a Species Recovery Programme for the British people!

TED HUGHES: Persecuted

Hounding Ted Hughes

AUTHOR Ted Hughes has been accused of racism by the Commission for Racial Equality over his book The Polar Bear.

Apparently the offending passages concern the whiteness of the bear's fur and it being made black by dirt and dust. A spokesman for the CRE said "In a multi-racial society this sort of reading matter discriminates against black and brown people".

THE WAY THINGS WERE

THE NATIONAL Front often comes under fire for opposing the changing face of Britain and of wanting to turn the clock back to the way things were. It's good news then when a Government department supports direct action to reverse some of these unwanted changes.

In the 1930's the American Grey Squirrel was imported into Britain and has been gradually eroding the territory of the native Red Squirrel which now faces extinction. A £200,000 Species Recovery Programme is to be launched by English Nature to attempt to re-establish the Red

THE RED SQUIRREL: Being helped to survive.

LESSER-SPOTTED RED: The group name for Gays, Wimmin, Trots, Hippies and Guardian readers.

ENDANGERED SPECIES

YOU COULD ALWAYS be sure of a sighting at every Left-wing march, rally, demo, picket or vigil. They were sometimes called 'students' or 'Guardian Readers', often they were 'Gay'. They have been known as Trotskyites - that species with beards, duffle-coats and sandals. The female has been known to be called 'Wimmin' and stands out with its cropped hair and bover boots, while the older members are called 'hippies'. Collectively they are known as the 'Lesser-Spotted Red'.

They support all the politically correct 'in' causes and create bandwagons to attempt to block what they don't agree with. In the Seventies when the National Front was picking up a good deal of support in by-elections and council elections, they created the Anti-Nazi League, not just to oppose the NF but also to pull together all the factions around the Labour Party into a revolutionary mass movement of the broad Left.

With the onset of the recession in the early eighties these same people grouped around the Right to Work campaign. They resurfaced again as members of the Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament when the Government announced plans to buy the American Cruise missile system.

When it became fashionable to attack the policy of racial separation in South Africa the Lesser-Spotted Red aligned with the Anti-Apartheid Movement and in 1990 they set up the Anti-Poll Tax Federation as their next bandwagon.

Now that the Poll Tax is being phased out and the Whites in South Africa appeared to have pressed their self-destruct for Civil Liberties and claim to be against censorship but then spend most of their time censoring anything they regard as racist, sexist or any other 'ist' that they don't like.

They are hypocritical and prepared to support anything that is anti-British. For instance they spend years opposing the Military Junta in Argentina only to support it when Argentina invaded the Falkland Islands!. Of course they oppose British Nationalism yet embrace without conscience the bombing and murder perpetrated in the name of Irish Nationalism by the IRA.

WASHED-UP

But time is running out for the Lesser-Spotted Red. They have been overtaken by the course of history. Their hero is Nelson Mandela the ailing convicted terrorist. Their heroine is Glenys Kinnock the wife of the washed-up politician. Their inspiration came from Eastern Europe but now with the collapse of the Communist regimes they are forced to turn in on themselves and hide away in their tiny irrelevant groups.

Not wanted in the Labour Party. Not wanted in the Unions. Ridiculed at University and discredited in society. The Lesser-Spotted Red, faces extinction as its natural habitat gradually disappears. Like the dinosaur it has failed to adapt to the realities of the modern-day world and its passing will be mourned by few.

button, the Lesser-Spotted Red has come up with the highly original idea of re-creating the Anti-Nazi League.

Well established within a fair number of Labour Councils these people claim grants from council funds to finance their activities at a local level. Invariably they are employed out of the public purse as lecturers in obscure and irrelevant studies or social workers, outreach coordinators and of course Black lesbian 'awareness' trainers.

They attach themselves to bodies like the National Council
